About the artwork

Set against a crisp white canvas, Habitat evokes an abstract world of movement and organic forms through a vibrant interplay of cerulean blue, black, green, and touches of yellow. Forms suggest living creatures emerging intuitively from the composition, without ever becoming fully defined. The expansive white space creates a sense of lightness and stillness, in contrast with the energy held within the central forms. Part of the Soft Impact series, the work explores the delicate relationship between nature, movement, and the spaces we inhabit.
