About the artwork

The Mountain of the Mind delves into the psychological and societal turmoil sparked by the rise of AI technology and the corresponding erosion of human skills. The piece visualizes the tension between the overwhelming growth of artificial intelligence and the growing disconnection from our own innate capabilities. The central image, a chaotic, fragmented mountain represents the mind's landscape, distorted by technological advancement. Layers of ink, graphite, prisma color, paint, and gold dust interact to reflect the complexities of this transformation. Sharp contrasts and textures symbolizing both the fractured nature of contemporary life and the fading value of human craftsmanship. The work challenges the viewer to consider what we are losing as we outsource our cognitive and analytical abilities to machines.
