About the artwork

Pegasus brings together Pegasus and Buraq in a unified meditation on transcendence. The work does not separate the two myths, but merges them into a single evolving presence that reflects ascent, imagination, and spiritual elevation.

Built through layered ink and expressive marks, the form appears in motion, suspended between material and immaterial states. Its wings unfold like fragments of language, carrying echoes of myth, memory, and revelation, while the body dissolves into traces that suggest passage between worlds.

Here, Pegasus becomes a symbol of poetic inspiration, while Buraq represents sacred journey and divine closeness. Together, they form a shared language of flight where cultural boundaries fade, and the human desire to rise beyond limitation becomes universal.
